BARBOURVILLE, KY., FRIDAY, APRIL 18, 1919

ONE DOLLAR AND FIFTY CENTS A YEAR IN ADVANCE

MAY MAKE RACE

FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL

Knox County will probably furnish a candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general, according to information received here that Sawyer Smith, well-known young Republican of Barbourville, is being strongly urged to make the race. Mr. Smith is widely known throughout the eastern part of the state, where he has always taken an active part in business and political affairs. He was a member of the Legislature in 1907 during the administration of Governor Wilson, and at one time was assistant district attorney for the Eastern district under Edward P. Morrow. There is added interest to the announcement of the probable candidacy of Mr. Smith from the fact that Barbourville is the home also of Lieut. Gov. James D. Black.

The above statement is taken from the Louisville Herald, the leading Republican newspaper of the state, and it looks as if Mr. Sawyer A. Smith will be named as the candidate for Attorney General of Kentucky. If Mr. Smith is nominated for this important place on the Republican ticket it will add much strength to the ticket as Mr. Smith is an able, energetic young lawyer of Barbourville and one who has the ability to put up a strong fight for the party. He is an able speaker and a good scrapper in a political battle. Mr. Smith has made a success as a lawyer. The Republicans can rest assured that if he is nominated he will put life into the campaign and can be counted upon to do his share toward a Republican success at the November election.

Mr. Smith was a member of the Legislature in 1907 and while he was serving his district as representative he was very active and showed his ability that he was a young man at that time. He was afterwards appointed assistant United States District Attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky for four years. As Attorney General of Kentucky he would serve the people to their satisfaction and with credit to himself.

CIRCUIT COURT CASES

Commonwealth of Kentucky vs. Dewey Baker and Jess Baker, accused of killing Jim and Henry Mills, found not guilty on the ground of self defense.

Commonwealth of Kentucky vs. Alex Henton, moonshining, found guilty and fined $300 and ten days in jail.

Commonwealth of Kentucky vs. Middleton, transferred from Harlan Co., charged with the murder of Steve Phillips, held over by mutual agreement.

Four men were disfranchised for two years on their first offence for carrying concealed weapons.

M. Dillman, Wm. Edwards and Roy named Burnett, about fifteen years of age, were given from one to two years, (probably in Reform School,) for store breaking.

Mrs. Clinton Greenman

A wide circle of friends will be deeply saddened to learn of the recent death at Vallejo, Cal., of Mrs. Clinton Greenman, who was formerly Miss Sallie Catron, of Atlanta, a sister of Dr. I. T. Catron, of this city. Dr. and Mrs. Catron left Monday afternoon for Barbourville, Ky., whither the remains have been sent and where the funeral services and interment will be held. Barbourville was the childhood home of Mrs. Greenman, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Catron, and other relatives still residing there.

A distinguished graduate of the Wesley Memorial Hospital School for Nurses, Mrs. Greenman was widely recognized as a leading member of her noble profession. Hundreds owe to her the recovery of health and of life itself.

Married last August she lost her husband in the influenza epidemic of the past winter. All to whom she was known and they number thousands, will mourn her passing and cherish her beautiful memory.

CIVIC LEAGUE PAYS FOR FLIES

Until Saturday, the 19th, the Civic League will pay 10c for each 100 flies. They already have quite a number. The idea is to create interest in the fly campaign.

The Civic League ladies will also visit the stores, homes which own barns, hog pens, etc. and plead with the owners to use fly traps and disinfect the manure. Two pounds of iron sulphate dissolved in a gallon of water, poured upon fifteen pounds of horse manure killed 941 out of every 1000 larva, by actual test. This treatment costs from one to two cents per day.

Air slacked lime is also excellent. The best method is to keep the manure cleaned up and spread. Also screen garbage cans and out of doors toilets.

Childrens lives are at stake, as well as adults. Help save them.

Hibbard—Hall

At the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. W. R. Cheek, of Emanuel, Knox Co. Miss Offie Hibbard, the pretty daughter of Mr. W. L. Hibbard, of Langsaw, was married on March 22, to Mr. N. C. Hall, of Barbourville, an operator for the L. & N. Railroad and a popular young man of that city.

They have been visiting Mrs. Hall's parents the past week and after a short bridal tour will make their home in Barbourville.

From The London, Ky. Sentinel.

Smith—Faulkner

Saturday morning, April the 12th, Mr. Roy Faulkner and Miss Brillin Smith went to Pineville and were married at 8.15 o'clock in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, by the Rev. Robert R. Rose, a brother-in-law of the groom. They left on the 9 o'clock train for a short wedding trip to Louisville and other places. After their return they will make their home in Barbourville.

Misses Nancy Faulkner and Luciah Smith accompanied the bridal couple to Pineville.

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Smith of this city. She graduated from the High School in 1917. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Faulkner and is an employee at the L. & N. depot. He also is a graduate of the High School, being in the class of 1916.

Birthday Dinner

On Monday, March 31st, Miss Roberta Cole entertained the Union College Senior High School Class at her home on Knox Street with a six o'clock dinner of four courses which was very capably served by Mrs. R. W. Cole and Mrs. Bassett Milton. The house was artistically decorated with a profusion of ferns and palms.

The date was the birthday of the Class President who received many presents of a comical nature.

The guests included Miss Van Huse, Class Chaperson, Misses Marjorie Brown, Theima Morehead, Daisy Robison, Grace Kennedy, Mary Agnes Heldrick, and Drusilla Tye, and Messrs. Horace Barker, Collie Franklin, John Robison, and Master David Randolph Minton.

WOOD G. DUNLAP

REAL ESTATE BARGAINS

For sale: One house and lot on Main Street. One house and lot on Allison Av. Two lots on Allison Av. One lot on Depot Street.

The above property will be sold at Bargain prices if bought this week. C. Dickinson & Co. 24-11

Mr. Charles J. Johnson, a prominent citizen and coal operator of Pineville, died at that city Tuesday night following an operation for abscess of the brain. A wife and five children survive him.

WOMENS STUDY CLUB

The Womens Study Club held its regular bi-monthly meeting at the residence of Mrs. Jesse Davis Tuggle, Tuesday afternoon, April 15th at 2.30 o'clock. Seventeen members responded to roll-call with current events.

Mrs. Nicholson, of Knoxville, Tenn., sister of the hostess, was the guest of honor. Misses Weeks, Brady, and Van Hosen were guests for the social hour.

The business session was short, evidencing the splendid efforts of committees in closing up the years work.

The Program Committee reported the course of study for next years work, "Art and Music" as arranged by the Bay View Reading Club. The Club voted unanimously to accept this course.

The Committee assisting with the Kitchen Shower at the High School April 11th, reported favorably. Many useful articles were donated by the Club. Twenty-five Refugee garments were distributed among the members to be made by the first of an answer to the appeal of the American Red Cross. The Club volunteered to make one-fourth of the garments sent here.

The following program was then presented:

Mrs. J. Frank Hawn, chairman for the day. "The Trans-Siberian Rail Road."—Mrs. Joseph Mitchell. "The Story of the Lost Battalion."—Mrs. Marcum. Solos: (a) "My Son." Carrie Jacobs Bond. (b) "Somebody Waiting For Me." Harry Lauder, sung by Mrs. Rathfon.

After adjournment the hostess served a delicious salad course. Mrs. Geo. W. Tye will be hostess to the Club at the next meeting, Apr. 29.

The next lecture and demonstration on "Food Values" will be given by Mrs. Potter and Miss Tonnenday at the High School on Tuesday afternoon, April 22nd, at 2.30 o'clock, under the auspices of the Womens Study Club. Don't fail to be present.

TUESDAY CLUB

On Tuesday afternoon, April the eighth, the Tuesday Club held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Sawyer A. Smith, on Knox Street.

As the subject of the day was "Children" each member answered the roll-call with a bright saying of some child. After business was over Mrs. Edward Faulkner, the leader, took charge. The meeting was opened with a prayer for children by Mrs. E. T. Franklin. Vocal Solo, "A Lullaby," Mrs. A. H. Davis. A poem, "Little White Prayers," Mrs. A. W. Hopper. As the word "Children" meant so much the subject was divided into the following topics: Keeping Children out of mischief. Mrs. Oldfield. Obedience, Mrs. Gay Dickinson. Letting a Child Choose, Miss Gertrude Black. Praising Children, Mrs. Sawyer Smith. Overstrain and Cross Children, Mrs. Bassett Milton. Guests in Our Homes, Mrs. Walter Hudson. Mrs. Hiram Owens read an excellent paper on "Telling the Truth to Children." Mrs. James Tuggle read one of Edgar Guest's poems called "His Example." Another of his poems, "My Choice," was read by the leader.

Each subject was discussed in a very helpful way to the members. New ideas were given and various methods suggested. After the literary program, Mrs. Faulkner had a picture contest in which the members were to guess the persons whose photos adorned the living room. Eighteen pictures of the different members taken babyhood and childhood, were collected and on display. This contest was most amusing and interesting and created much fun and excitement. Mrs. Hiram Owens and Mrs. A. W. Hopper were the winners but in the final test Mrs. Hopper won the box of linen stationery.

Mrs. Hudson and Mrs. Hopper assisted the hostess in serving dainty refreshments.

The greatest liar in town is the Court House Clock, but it tells the truth once a day.

Clean-UP Proclamation

Mayor T. D. Tinsley has promised the Civic League that Thursday, Apr. 24th, wagons will be brought into service and all rubbish collected and placed on the sidewalks for earthing away will be removed. Mrs. R. W. Cole asks that Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday be devoted to gathering all rubbish and that it be so placed by Thursday that it may be hauled away and nothing left to stand for weeks as the result of negligence of the date mentioned. Mayor Tinsley will have circulars distributed later.

SCOUT MINUTES March 28 1919

The meeting opened by giving the scout oath, being called together by the Scout Master at seven o'clock. The scouts present are indicated by the roll. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

While camping out at the Mayhew farm the scouts caught ten pounds of fish. These were sold for $2.95 which was deposited in the treasury.

An order of $1.25 was made on the treasury to pay for some fishing tackle. The scouts voted Mr. Burman a vote of thanks for his interest in scout work. Mr. Burman promised to receive any news that the scouts wish to publish in the paper.

It was moved and seconded that the scouts elect a new scribe the former scribe having moved away. Thomas Hignite and Hatcher Miller were nominated. The vote was four to four. A coin was cast to decide the vote. Thomas Hignite was duly elected.

Homer Gibson successfully passed the tenderfoot examination and was duly voted a scout.

Mr. Burman made an excellent talk to the scouts on Sanitation, more especially on how to rid our town of flies. The scouts adjourned giving Mr. Burman the scout hand shake. Signed, H. M. Oldfield, S. M. Thomas B. Hignite, Scribe.

When you buy a shotgun get that chicken hawk, make sure its a Remington.

Keep down the gopher pest with a .22 caliber Remington and hollow point cartridges.

Every farmer needs at least a shotgun and a small caliber rifle—Remington preferred.

G. W. Tye, Agricultural Agent, asks the farmers not to rush their products to market while the prices are low. He insists and is backed by opinion, that prices are not going to fall much, if any. The farmer who has the nerve to hold for a good price will get it.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our many friends for the sympathy extended us in the sad hour of bereavement in the sad loss of our daughter, Fannie. We wish also to thank them for the many beautiful flowers. J. H. Catron and Family.

Widow of Pin Victim Succumbs

Mrs. Fannie Greenman, widow of the late Clinton Dewitt Greenman, who succumbed to influenza-pneumonia in January, passed away at the Vallejo General Hospital late yesterday afternoon. During the flu epidemic in January both Mr. and Mrs. Greenman were stricken. Shortly after her husband's death, she was taken to St. Vincents Naval Hospital in a very critical condition, but after two week's treatment seemed to regain her strength. About two weeks ago she was taken ill and gradually grew worse until on Monday she was taken to the General Hospital in the hope that her life might be saved.

Deceased is survived by a sister, Mrs. G. Doolittle, of this city, and a brother, who is now enroute here from Oregon.

The remains are at Mrs. F. Sanford's undertaking parlors awaiting funeral arrangements.

HOG SCRATCH POST NEWS

Hiram Kinshaw observes that the price of corn don't affect him any since it all goes inside his stock. The hog, egg and chicken market is more important.

Mrs. Hiram Kinshaw says when they get good rounds out her way, Hiram wont cuss so hard and may join the church.

Millie Wantaman planted some bleeding hearts and forget-me-nots this week.

Jim Lively put his foot in his mouth with his best girl when he told her womens dress was too high. She asked him whose and wont believe he meant they cost too much.

Johnnie Davis, who has been courting Patience Lively for five years, gave her a cook book for her birthday and Hog Scratch Post is guessing Johnnie is slow but sure.

When the preacher shouted that all men are liars on Sunday morning, Clarissy Topping who has had several narrow escapes from matrimony was heard to say "amen." Some of the men were there too.

John Stubbs took five dozen eggs to Barbourville Monday. All his team could haul without foundering.

Bill Blivens treated his girl to a package of chewing gum last week. Bill's getting reckless with his money but it's his first offense and we overlook it.

The Ladies Aid will hold a cake social Thursday night. No free sampling allowed. Bring your money with you and pay like a man.

Jim Biggs says the town fellow may get the skimmed cream in this high cost of living but he guesses his home made garden will keep his family from suffering.

BIRDS

Judge R. S. Rose Makes an Appeal

Judge R. S. Rose, our Circuit Judge, meets with much that is saddening and depressing as he makes his rounds from Court to Court. He has to judge human beings, guilty of every conceivable crime against God and humanity. Perhaps on this account he loves birds the more. They are the winged angels of earth, clothed wonderfully by the Divine hand, their little throats the medium of earth's sweetest music, they thrill out a full measure of praise and joyousness. They love and are loved as is proven by the quick answer to the bird call. They trust and will make friends with human beings when they may. Then we kill them for their trustfulness and because it is a pleasure to prove our skill with a shot gun or a rifle.

Birds destroy bugs and insects by the millions—without them, our crops suffer badly and yet, in our insensate pride and that we may prove how sure is the eye which the Creator gave us, we lift a gun, there is a crack, and a little bird, which was perhaps calling to its mate, or a mother bird stealing a few moments from her nest, is struck to the earth, a broken little heap of blood and feathers. A glorious achievement, my brothers, which entitles us to rank with other destroyers of innocence. Or perhaps, with broken wing or limb, it will linger for days unheeded by any, save by him who numbers the hairs of our heads and who knows when even a sparrow falls to the ground.

Boys and Men—if you wish to shoot, shoot at inanimate targets and not one of the miracles of God's creations, the birds.

BIG OIL DEALS ON

Charlie Main says the whole of the Mountain States will show big oil testing developments this summer. One company, the Associated Producing Co., alone will sink twenty wells, wet or dry, the first being at Hector's Creek the rig for which is now being set up.

There are excellent chances for Knox County and well developments will be reported from time to time as real facts make development certain.

SABBATH OF LIGHT

Holy Saturday a Great Day for the Pilgrims Gathered in Jerusalem.

DURING holy week the Christian and Moslem pilgrims in Jerusalem visit the sacred river Jordan. On Holy Thursday the Greek patriarch washes the feet of 12 pilgrims. This service and ceremony is performed in the open court in front of the cathedral, on a temporary platform decorated with olive boughs. The patriarchs of the Catholic and Armenian communities perform a similar service inside the cathedral, to which the general public is not admitted. On Good Friday all-day services are in order, and special services with ceremonies commemorating the crucifixion take place from six in the evening until midnight. On Holy Saturday, also known as the "Sabbath of Light," all lights in the cathedral are extinguished. The Greek and Armenian sects relight their lamps, candles and fires from a flame which is believed by them to appear on the holy sepulcher on that day. This is the crowning event of Lent to the Greek, Armenian, Syrian and Coptic creeds. Millions of wax tapers and candles are lighted at this time, burned a few minutes, then carefully packed and treasured as sacred relics which are carried and distributed over the whole civilized world.

At midnight the service of the resurrection is performed, after which many of the pilgrims start on their homeward journey.

More tourists are of course welcome, because they contribute somewhat to the trade of the season, but they stay one or several days at the longest, and do not enter into nor understand the real religious or social life of the people of the land, and consequently are regarded as outsiders.

IS GREAT ESTABLISHED FACT

Skeptics Have at All Times Failed to Disprove the Resurrection of Easter Morning.

The lesson of Easter involves the question of the divinity of Christ. There are two great miracles upon which Christianity rests. The miraculous birth and the resurrection go together. If we believe one we can believe the other. The former is not subject to historical proof. The latter has been proved and is one of the best-established facts in history.

Those who imagine themselves to be too "modern" to accept the resur-

THE SEPULCHRE

By Annie Johnson Flint

"The third day he shall rise again... So they made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone... He is not here; for he is risen, as he said."—Matthew 28: 1-6

The Man had died on the cross, And they laid him in the tomb; The Living Stone in the stone, The Rock in the rock-hewn room; They left him alone with Death, And sealed the stone at the door; They made the sepulchre sure, And set their watch before.

"Lest his friends should steal him away, And say that he rose," they said. But Life escaped from Death, And the God-man rose from the dead.

The skeptical minds of men Still think the sepulchre sure, But Christ had said, "I will arise," And the counsels of God endure.

Still his disciples go To carry the wondrous word: "The Lord is risen indeed!" "We know we have seen and heard." And the tomb men think so sure, With the seal of their scorn on the door.

The place where the Lord once lay— Is empty forevermore.

—Sunday School Times.

rection as a literal fact, are deluding no one but themselves. There is nothing new in the effort to explain away the great event. Men have been trying out explanations ever since the guards who went to sleep on duty around the tomb excused themselves by saying the disciples stole his body away while they slept. Explainers have risen and fallen as the ages have come and gone and the deeper the explanations have gone into the matter, the more apparent has become the fact. The simple Gospel narratives gave enough of the physical details of the event to make it convincing; the fact that the disciples themselves did not expect the resurrection and were slow to believe it until they were forced to believe it by his presence among them; by exhibition of his sacred wounds and the fact that it became the burden of their preaching in the future all go to make up the indisputable collateral evidence of the literal fact. Every one of the disciples is said to have died a martyr and his resurrection was their "testimony to martyrdom."—H. Lee Mills in Houston Post.

IS GREATEST OF FESTIVALS

Easter Celebrated in Some Form Everywhere, Especially Among the People of Latin Countries.

Of all annual festivals among Christian nations, Easter seems to have made the most serious impression, and the customs connected with its first celebrations to have lingered the longest. Europe, with its many nations, and, therefore, many people, has ever been the scene of various ceremonies distinctly belonging to the separate countries, with the Latin church always in the lead in the matter of picturesque symbols and processions.

The war will make a difference in some districts, but wherever there are a few gathered together in his name in the neighborhood of mighty cathedrals still standing, or tiny kirks in the heart of the woods or along the sea, there will some feature of the story of the non-event be told in symbols.

These strange customs, sometimes combined with elaborate ceremonies, are found oftentimes in the rural districts, where the people have not free access to the towns, and simplicity of living does not question the difference between truth and tradition.

WORDS FROM HOME

Statements That May Be Investigated
Testimony of Harboursville Citizens.

When a Harboursville citizen comes to the front, telling his friends and neighbors of his experience, you can rely on his sincerity. The statements of people residing in far away places do not command your confidence. Home endorsement is the kind that backs Doan's Kidney Pills. Such testimony is convincing. Investigation proves it true. Below is a statement of a Harboursville resident. No stronger proof of merit can be had.

Geo. C. Morris, farmer, says: "I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. My kidneys were out of order and my back ached and pained terribly. I could hardly do any stooping or lifting and my kidneys at times too frequent in action and then again sluggish. Doan's Kidney Pills soon rid me of the backaches and put my kidneys in good order."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Morris had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Hymn of the Stars

Would you know the story, friend,
The stars have to relate?
Then lift your glances heavenward,
And listen while you wait.
Can't you hear the harmony
Of those pretty stars you see?
Peace, joy, and love divine,
They give to you and me.
There is no speech or language where Their voices are not heard,
Their line has gone thru all the earth
And to its limit their word.
Thruout the starry milky-way,
Wherein the earth has its place
As near the first as to the last,
In illimitable space.
Can't you see the friendship told,
By the stars on high,
With the father of the universe
Uniting you and I?
Should there ever come a time, when Friendship is not true
The heavens and the firmament
Must be forgotten too.
Not different from the love, friend,
Which David and Jonathan knew
As the purity of the friendship which
The Kingdom has for you.
O the rapture of that melody
Inspiring more than breath—
The simple element of life, and Stronger than is death.
Sallie Lyttle Hatton.

If I Were a Farmer.

If I were a farmer I would keep at hand a few reliable medicines for minor ailments that are not so serious as to require the attention of a physician, such as Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs, colds and croup.

Chamberlain's Liniment for sprains, bruises and rheumatic pains.

Chamberlain's Tablets for stomach troubles, biliousness and constipation.

By having these articles at hand it would often save the trouble of a trip to town in the bustest season or in the night, and would enable me to treat slight ailments as soon as they appear, and thereby avoid the more serious diseases that so often follow.

NOTICE

Is hereby given that Geo. Neal, colored, sentenced to the penitentiary at Eddyville, Kentucky, Jan. 10th, 1914, will make application for parole.

UNDER the POPPIES

Soon the poppies will be blooming above the graves of 70,000 Americans who died along the firing line of France.

We cannot bring them back.

But there are thousands of others still over there whose return we may hasten with our dollars.

To everyone of them we owe an individual debt. And only an ingrate will endeavor to escape payment.

Let's not forget these thousands
under the poppies.

Let's not bury our gratitude under a patch of hogweed.

Let's keep our loyalty as strong in peace as in war.

Let's stand by Uncle Sam to the finish.

FOR BILIOUSNESS AND INDIGESTION TAKE A CALOTAB

The New Nauseless Calomel That Is Purified and Refined From All Sickening and Dangerous Effects.

You have heard of smokeless powder, colorless iodine and tasteless quinine—now get acquainted with nausea-less calomel, — the new calomel that is wholly delightful in its effect, yet retains all of the system purifying and liver-cleansing qualities of the old style calomel.

Your doctor will tell you that calomel is the best and only medicine for biliousness, headache, indigestion and constipation and now that it is pleasant to take everybody is taking Calotabs, the new calomel with all of the benefits and none of the sting.

One tablet on the tongue at bedtime, with a swallow of water, — that's all. No taste, no nausea, no salts, no danger of salivation. Next morning you wake up feeling fine, your liver thoroughly cleansed, all biliousness, headache, constipation and indigestion removed. Eat what you please, — no danger.

Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents. All druggists are authorized to refund the price if you are not delighted with Calotabs.

NOTICE, STREET CONSTRUCTION.

Sealed bids will be received by the undersigned until noon, April 21st, 1919, for the construction of the following streets of the city of Harboursville, Ky., and the construction of concrete curb and gutter thereon, under ordinances heretofore adopted and plans and specifications which can be seen at the office of the undersigned, viz:

Public Square, Main, Knox, Dishman, College, Liberty, Allison, High, Depot, Pine, Manchester, Black, Sycamore, Pitzer, Caudill, Ballard, Richmond and Coyt.

Bidders must submit bids, as to each street, separately, and may submit bids as to the whole work.

Bids must also be submitted separately as to each part of said construction, viz: grading; construction of base; laying top course of limestone; and spreading and rolling Kentucky Rock asphalt; and the construction of concrete curb and gutter. And bids may be submitted for construction of curb and gutter alone.

All bids must be sealed, marked "Sealed Bids," and addressed to the Mayor. All bids will be opened April 21, 1919, at two o'clock in the afternoon.

All bids must be accompanied with certified check payable to City Treasurer for $100.00 for each street bid on, which will be returned to unsuccessful bidders and returned to successful bidders upon execution of contract.

Successful bidder must execute bond as provided by Ordinances.

This April 4th, 1919.

JOHN PARKER, City Clerk.

FLAT LICK NEWS

E. P. Jackson, a prominent lumberman of Beckly, W. Va., has arrived back with home folks and with his family will locate here. He has purchased the property of E. R. Coone.

C. D. Chavis, wife and little daughter, Nora, of Corbin, visited home folks the first of the week.

Miss Nora Sans, of Corbin, is visiting Miss Pearl McMesser.

J. H. Slusher and Co. are buying Liberty Bonds.

J. G. Eversole, salesman for Robinson Bros., was calling on his trade Thursday.

Miss Thelma Morehead, a student at Union College, was home the past week.

H. B. Wilson, a prominent farmer, visited Barboursville on Sunday.

Wm. Baker and wife, of Pineville, called on home folks and friends on Sunday.

Andrew Slusher, of Cincinnati, O., and the city barber, J. M. Howard, have gone into the poultry business on a large scale and contemplate having several hundred fliers for sale this season.

J. H. Slusher, the leading merchant of this vicinity, made a business trip to Somerset, Ky. last week.

Charlie Asher, of Walsend, visited our city Sunday calling on friends.

We will buy your Liberty Bonds. J. H. Slusher & Co.

Mrs. A. J. Slusher and daughter, Mahie, also the daughter of J. H. Slusher, Dorothy and Daphne, visited Barboursville Thursday.

J. H. Slusher & Co., the Square Deal Store, reports business very good—the best known in many years. The only trouble is to get goods fast enough.

Vincent Gray visited Pineville on Saturday night, taking in the movies and his best friends.

Edward Mackey and Oscar F. Slusher are still men about town in our little city.

Great excitement occurred in the leading store of Flat Lick Saturday morning when A. Stale Leaf, of Bread, Ky., got fresh with one of J. H. Slusher's clerks. He claimed, in self defense, that the clerk cut him. The clerk claimed she had merely turned him down, that she objected to him hanging round the store and that he had asked to be taken home to supper. During the night he mysteriously disappeared. The officers are greatly mystified.

DO THEY PAY

Do you know that good service costs money? Do you know that high priced good service is better than low priced poor service? Do you know that no man can give good service that has not enough money to properly equip himself for the kind of service that he tries to render? Do you know that poor roads keep you poor and cause you to get poor medical service?

The expense of coming to see you and the expense of living keeps the doctor so poor that he is unable to buy the equipment that he should have and you suffer as a result. We have many doctors in this town and county that could and would like to do many things but they can't afford to buy the machine because it costs so much to come to see you that they have no money left and then you cannot afford to pay for the work because you have to use four mules to haul a load of coal, corn or anything to market when you should haul the same load with two if you had good roads. You do not have good roads because you do not make them. You will not work them.
You had rather feed what you do make to four horses and drag what you have to sell thru the mud than to spend half what the bad roads cost you and have good ones. Stop and think about it. Which is the best investment? Which will pay you the most? Did you ever have any trouble in getting a doctor to come to see some of your family when the roads were bad? Did you ever walk the floor and wish the doctor could get there quicker?
Then did you ever ask yourself the question, "Why can he not get here sooner?" You know the answer.

Pike or no pike, there is no reason why we should not have good roads eight months out of the year.

Now someone says, "He has an automobile and wants us to build a road for him." That is the truth too
I have an automobile and what do you think I have it for? I have it so that I can come to see you quicker when you are sick and get back and see someone else. I want the road for my automobile it is true, but which gets the most benefit from the road and automobile, you or I?

Ask yourself the question, "Do bad roads pay?" and if they do, keep them. If they do not, let's make good ones out of them. It is up to you. Think it over. Use your thinking. Let's get out of all the ruts that we can.

This is the Twentieth Century, we are living in it and not in the dark ages. All around us people are living better than we. Let's wake up and get all the good out of life we can. Let's have comforts. Let's have progress.

You know that the outside world came in and got all our timber and mineral wealth for a song. Many other good things go to neighboring towns and counties because we will not reach out and get them. Let's reach out and keep on reaching.

We have all been more or less disappointed in the new road construction it is true, but that is no reason why we should quit. Nobody loves a quitter and I verily believe that the Almighty looks on one with holy contempt.

Some will say, "Oh, this is good enough for us." That is not true.
Nothing is good enough that we can make better. The times demand that we improve the roads in this County.
The people not only of this County demand it but also the people of the whole country demand it and are asking "What is the matter with Knox County?" Let's stop apologizing and let's remedy the things that we are ashamed of. Let's fix to the best of advantage all the roads now and get the benefit while we live. Every thing is contagious. Start working out your section of the road and see how soon your neighbor will begin.

Make him ashamed of his road, but if he is not already ashamed of it there should be another overseer appointed.

I am still believing in the people of Knox County. Leslie Logan.

All Rights of Way from Barbourville to Bell County Secured

County Attorney, Jas. S. Golden reported Saturday that he and Judge J. D. Tuggle had secured every outstanding right-of-way along the Dixie Highway from Barbourville to Bell County. As the route the first two miles out of Corbin has not been definitely settled, it is too early to say whether there will be trouble but but since twenty-five deeds or more have been secured and as there are optional routes for the highway, no trouble is anticipated. As soon as the route is decided on our hustling County Judge and County Attorney will get after the rights of way so that the building of the Dixie Highway, with its asphalted surface, may become a real and most important asset to Barbourville and Knox Co.

We congratulate our Fiscal Court on their good work. Tell them you yourselves appreciate it. They are human and like a handshake and a "good work" as well as the rest of us.

JUDGE ED MORROW HERE

Expects to Be Elected Governor Judge Ed Morrow, candidate of the Republican party for Governor of Kentucky and whom many believe should have been Governor two years ago, was here Tuesday on legal business. He appeared confident of the support of the people of Kentucky generally and believes the good people of the mountain sections will rally strongly to him. He spoke of the wonderful opportunities for the development of these great store-houses of nature, the Kentucky Mountains and we are sure that when the opportunity comes for him to serve us of the mountains, he will do all in his power to do so.

"Never before" so Judge Morrow said, "have Republican prospects been brighter. It is only by apathy and by not coming to the polls that they can lose. If they work for victory they will win hands down.
Knox County, I am sure I can count on for a handsome majority."

Judge Morrow expressed great pleasure when told of a number of Democrats who will vote for him.

Do You Sleep Well?

To be at his best a man must have sound, refreshing sleep. When wakeful and restless at night he is in no condition for work or business during the day. Wakefulness is often caused by indigestion and constipation, and is quickly relieved by Chamberlain's Tablets. Try a dose of these tablets and see how much better you feel with a clear head and good digestion.

HANDS, ARMS, LIMBS ASLEEP

And Was Run-Down, Weak and Nervous, Says Florida Lady.
Five Bottles of Cardui
Made Her Well.

Kathleen, Fla.—Mrs. Dallas Price, of this place, says: "After the birth of my last child, I got very much run-down and weakened, so much that I could hardly do anything at all. I was so awfully nervous that I could scarcely endure the least noise. My condition was getting worse all the time."

I knew I must have some relief or I would soon be in the bed and in a serious condition for I felt so badly and was so nervous and weak I could hardly live. My husband asked Dr.
about my taking Cardui. He said, "It's a good medicine, and good for that trouble," so he got me 5 bottles. After about the second bottle I felt greatly improved. Before taking it my limbs and hands and arms would go to sleep. After taking it, however, this poor circulation disappeared. My strength came back to me and I was soon on the road to health. After the use of about 5 bottles, I could do all my house-work and attend to my six children besides."

You can feel safe in giving Cardui a thorough trial for your troubles. It contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs, but is composed of mild, vegetable, medicinal ingredients with no bad after-effects. Thousands of women have voluntarily written, telling of the good Cardui has done them. It should help you, too. Try it.

Wallins Creek, Harlan, Ky.

Mrs. Martha Simpson, wife of Albert Simpson, was afflicted with pel-lagra, stomach and kidney trouble and testified she was cured by "Bingham's Herb Remedy for Pellagra and Bingham Herb Remedy."

Mr. George Ashor

Straight Creek, Ky. Aug. 1, 1914.
I had pellagra and stomach trouble. The doctor failed to cure me.
W. M. Bingham, of Himyar, came to my house with his Herb Medicine.
He said he could cure me. In seven weeks after I commenced taking his medicine I was well and able to go in the mines and work. I advise everybody to use Bingham's Herb Medicine.

Mrs. Carrie Miller

Himyar, Ky.
I had a bad case of pellagra, stomach trouble and female trouble for about four years. I took pills and didn't think I could live. I tried several doctors and they could not do me any good. On July 5th, 1912,
I commenced taking Bingham's Herb Medicine, and in two months and a half was well. I have been well two years and I advise all persons who may have these diseases to use Bingham's Herb Medicine. It will cure you. Mrs. Carrie Miller.

Mrs. Mary Elliott

Plueville, Ky.
I had rheumatism, liver and stomach trouble. I could walk only a little bit around the house. I could not do any work. I commenced taking Bingham's Herb Medicine and the first treatment helped me and I took this medicine six or seven weeks and it cured me. I have gained about thirty pounds and feel as well as I ever did and can do any kind of work. My testimony is true and the medicine will prove it to anyone who will try it. It is a winner.
Mrs. Mary Elliott.

Straight Creek, Ky.

Nov. 18, 1916.
I had pellagra, stomach and liver trouble for three years and after trying several doctors they failed to give me any relief. W. M. Bingham, of Himyar, Ky., came to my house with his herb medicine and said he could cure me. After taking his medicine for seven weeks I was completely cured.

I would advise all sufferers to use his medicine, made of pure roots and herbs.

Mrs. Maggie Allen.

Wallins Creek, Harlan, Ky.
I was a sufferer with a severe case of pellagra, but began taking the pure herb medicines of W. M. Bingham Oct. 18, 1917. They cured me and I heartily recommend them to other sufferers.

Mrs. Sarah (Elmer) Osborne.

Mrs. Susie Dyer.
Mrs. Susie Dyer, of Baileys, Ky.
makes the following statement, "I can say to all who are suffering with pellagra to use Bingham's Herb Remedy. I had pellagra, was bothered with my stomach. I had commenced using Herb Medicine September 10.
The first treatment helped me and I used about five treatments and that cured me. I am as well and feel as well as I ever did. I can eat hearty and have gained several pounds.
God knows my statement is true.
You try the Herb Medicine and it will be the witness."

PERUNA THE GUIDE POST
TO HEALTH

Has Never Been Down
Sick Since Taking
PERUNA

Read this letter from Mr. Robt.
Minnick, Grass Range, Montana.
"In 1900 I was out in Kansas running a threshing engine and the threshing crew had to sleep out of doors. One of the crew brought a Peruna Almanac to the engine one day and I was feeling very ill from sleeping out. I decided to give Peruna a trial and sent for a bottle of Peruna and a box of Peruna Tablets, which straightened me out in a hurry.
"I have never been down sick since that time. I do not take any other medicines except Peruna. I always keep it on hand.
If I get my feet wet, get a cold, feel chilly, or a little bad, I always take Peruna. People should not wait until they are down sick and then take it, but should keep it on hand like I do, and when they feel bad, they should use it."

Mitchell-Faulkner

The wedding of Mr. Charles R. Mitchell, popular employee of the L. & N. Railroad, and Miss Nell C. Faulkner, the charming and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Faulkner, was consummated at the home of the bride on Wall Street, Monday at six o'clock, Rev. R. L. Creal, of the Baptist Church reading the beautiful service which formalized the union of the hands and hearts of the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell left for Cincinnati on their honeymoon.

Bingham Oil Company Drilling

The Bingham Oil Company which has been organized by our old friend and neighbor, C. H. Bingham, have purchased from J. A. McDermott a lease on the I. N. Jones tract on Little Richland Creek and are drilling their first well which is an offset to Ken-Flo Co's No. 2 on the Morris farm. This is in proven territory and a good well is expected in the first of the week. The fact that the field work will be looked after by Mr. McDermott is an assurance that it will be done in a practical way.

We understand that this company which has a small capitalization has no stock for sale but are in the business in the old style way, in which production of oil and gas is their sole aim.

METHODISTS TOLD TO DO SOMETHING THAT IS SENSATIONAL

R. T. BURGE, MISSIONARY, SAYS CHURCH MUST KEEP PACE WITH WORLD, WHICH IS DOING THINGS DIFFERENTLY NOW, OR FALL HOPELESSLY BEHIND.

Appeals to Church to Make Supreme Effort and Sacrifice at This Time to Christianize World and Present Arms.

Plans of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, indicate that their field of work will greatly broaden in the next few months and will include Europe and Russia. "The Methodist Church has been plodding along for many years and has made a record that every Methodist is justly proud of," said R. T. Burge, of the Siberian Commission of the American Red Cross, in a letter from Vladivostok that has just been received at headquarters in Nashville.

"It is time, however, for the Methodist Church to do something sensational and unusual. All the world is doing things differently now and the organization that cannot keep pace must fall behind. We should go into the countries of Europe and Russia, be pioneers in a work that might mean more to prevent future wars than the League of Nations. Christianize and educate the peoples of the world and there will be no more wars. But if we have harmony by threats and fear and by constant show of force, I see no reason why it might not be another question of a scrap of paper."

"But it would be madness to attempt any work in Siberia or Russia at this time. No complete or intelligent investigations can be made until order is restored, and from what I have seen it will be months before that task is accomplished. The campaign for thirty-five million dollars to be conducted May 18 to 25 will go a long way toward solving a big problem."

"Keep in mind always that the complexion of the world has entirely changed and that not only must there be complete reorganization in economic, political and social conditions but most particularly in religious conditions."

We Are Authorized to Announce Richard C. Miller, candidate for Representative of Knox County subject to the action of the Republican Primary, August 2nd, 1919.

We Are Authorized to Announce Esq. Sam M. Bennett candidate for Representative of Knox County subject to the action of the Republican Primary August 2nd, 1919.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE

By order of the Knox Circuit Court rendered at its September term, 1917, in the case of John Pearcy, Plaintiff, against W. H. McDonald, Ellen C. McDonald, M. E. McDonald, defendants, I will, as Master Commissioner, on the 28th day of April, 1919, same being County Court day, sell at the Court House door in Barbourville, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, the following described property, to satisfy the judgement in said case, amounting to $1080.00, with interest from August 9th, 1912, and $15.00 probable cost, with the following credits: March 12, 1912, $80.00; October 22, 1913, $50.00; March 20, 1913, $100.00; April 24, 1914 $100.00; August 26, 1915, $500.00; July —, 1917, $50.00.

A tract of land lying on Manchester Street, known as the old home lot, on which D. McDonald lived in his life time, and which lot was deeded to him by J. R. Hicks etc. by deed of record in the office of the Clerk of the Knox County Court, in Deed Book No. 5, at page 44. Also one certain lot on Manchester Street, being the same lot deeded to D. McDonald by J. H. Catron and wife, by deed of record in the office aforesaid, in Deed Book No. 16, at page 8. Also one other certain lot on Manchester Street deeded from J. R. Hicks and others to D. McDonald December 13, 1894, by deed of record in said office in Deed Book No. 18, at page 268. All of said lots of land are in Barbourville, Kentucky, and eight-ninths of each and all of same were mortgaged and placed in lien to the plaintiff by the aforesaid instrument, and the plaintiff is now adjudged a prior and superior lien upon same to secure and make certain his debt herein adjudged and the cost of this action.

Said property will be sold on a credit of six months, the purchaser to execute bond with approved security, bearing interest at six per cent. from date, having the force and effect of a judgement and retaining a lien on said property until the purchase money is paid.

Quit Laxatives, Purges; Try NR

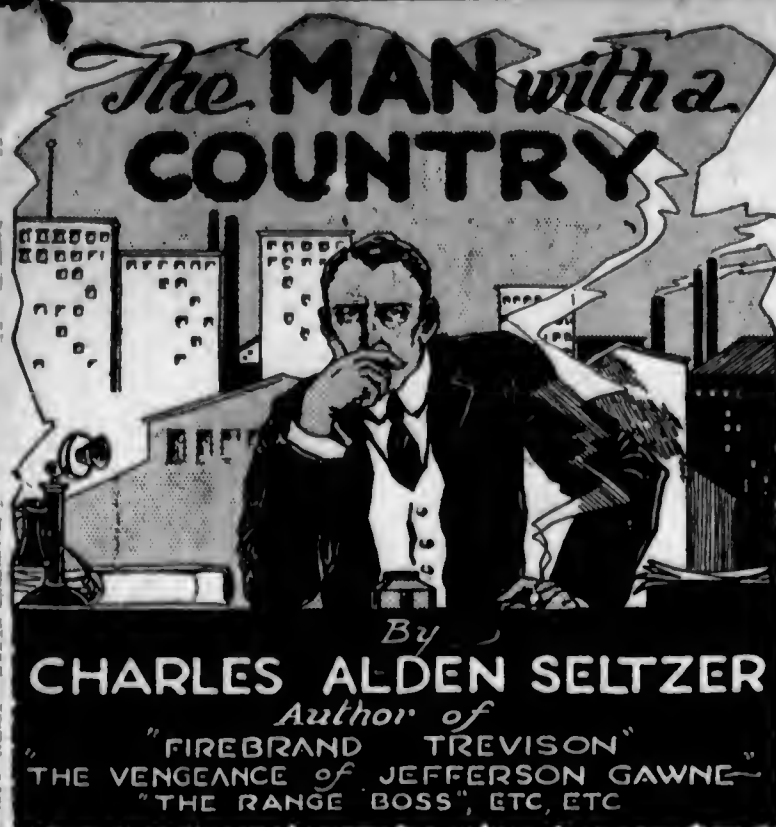

NR Tonight — Tomorrow Feel Right

It is a mistake to continually dose yourself with laxatives, pills, calomel, oil, purges and cathartics and force bowel action. It weakens the bowels and liver and makes constant dosing necessary.

Why don't you begin right today to overcome your constipation and get your system in such shape that daily purging will be unnecessary? You can do so if you get a 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and take one each night for a week or so. NR Tablets do much more than merely cause pleasant easy bowel action. This medicine acts upon the digestive as well as eliminative organs — promotes good digestion, causes the body to get its nourishment from all the food you eat, gives you a good, hearty appetite, strengthens the liver, overcomes biliousness, regulates kidney and bowel action and gives the whole body a thorough cleansing out. This accomplished you will not have to take medicine every day. An occasional NR tablet will keep your body in condition and you can always feel your best. Try Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and prove this. It is the best bowel medicine that you can use and costs only 25c per box, containing enough to last twenty-five days. Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist.

CHAPTER III

CORWIN was astonished to discover that most of his friends were either opposed to war with Germany or were lukewarm toward it. So he gathered that it was not a popular war. His own feelings had not changed—except that his convictions had deepened. When the poison of distrust of the President and his official family had got into his veins it had changed him overnight.

It was easy to pick flaws in every public utterance of the President; the mistakes of the men appointed to responsible positions were so glaringly apparent that they aroused in Corwin a grim contempt for the entire war structure. Men were being called to Washington in huge numbers to take charge of various departments—newly created. It seemed to Corwin that these men were chosen, not because of their special fitness, but because they were influential in politics. Corwin foresaw many opportunities for graft, and he had no doubt that the entire war-organization would be honeycombed with it. So, as the days fled and he continued to nurse his distrust, he observed with sardonic satisfaction that inefficiency was to reign in Falltown. For one morning Gary Miller told him that the Central Liberty Loan Committee of the district had appointed Bernard Dillon chairman of the Falltown Committee.

Corwin flushed angrily. He and Dillon were not friendly. He knew of no good reason why Dillon should not have the appointment, and he could not have denied that Dillon was honest. But he disliked the man, and was convinced that there were more capable men in Falltown.

He saw Miller looking keenly at him—understandingly. "Well," laughed Miller; "I suppose they could have done better. Not that I don't like Dillon. It's nothing personal, you understand; but he's a fellow that a man can't warm to." Miller's voice grew grave. "The loan is to be two billion. They can't raise it! Why, it's more money than the Government ever spent in two years. It didn't cost much more than that to finance the Civil War. And they talk of spending that amount within a few months!"

Miller was not the only resident of Falltown to express his convictions. During the days that followed the talk with the banker, Corwin hearkened much to the voice of discontent.

The fault-finder was omnipresent; his voice was raised in the office, the factory; in the groups that formed on the street corners; there was an undercurrent of dissatisfaction which created a savage joy in Corwin's heart. For he considered the dissatisfaction to be directed at the party in power—it was an expression of distrust, a protest against the huge blunder of waging war upon a foreign power which was thousands of miles distant. It wasn't necessary to spend that vast amount of money; it was a heinous crime to send millions of men to meet death upon a foreign field merely to uphold an ideal.

One night, standing at the fringe of a crowd that was listening attentively to a wildly-gesticulating man who stood on a wooden box, Corwin heard the principles of the Socialist Party expounded. Until now, Corwin had considered the Socialists rattle-brained radicals intent upon the dismemberment of the Government. But by the time the man had finished Corwin felt there was some virtue in the Socialist platform, after all.

He was astonished that he should admit it, but the man had created an impression upon him. The appeal of the orator had been made to the passions, to the elemental in man which he irritated by all authority. Wars were criminal, the orator said; the solution of the world-difficulty was the adoption of the doctrine of "the brotherhood of man." A draft was imminent, the orator said; and he advised all men to resist it—to the point of revolution, if necessary.

Also, the orator had something to say about bonds. They, too, were evil. There could be no war if the people refused to finance it. The rich men of the country were behind it all—the poor did not want war—they would not have it.

At this point in the orator's speech there came an interruption. A snaky, strong-faced man who stood near Corwin raised his voice sneeringly:

"Bah!" he yelled at the orator; "how much does the Kaiser pay you for shooting off your mouth?"

There was a laugh, some hisses, and some applause for the interrupter. Then suddenly, the crowd began to move. There were shouts, hoarse imprecations, blows.

In an instant turmoil reigned. The crowd became a huge blot animated by swinging arms, and articulate with curses and infuriated yells. Corwin saw the interrupter, a grim smile on his face, drive into the press, swinging his arms like flails. He saw men go down under the man's blows; and as Corwin ran for a position of safety he mentally remarked that the expression of the man's face was much like that which had been upon the face of his stenographer when she had told him: "Because America is America!"

He divined that the fighting instinct in the stenographer was as strong as that which had driven the strong-faced man to grimly attack the friends of the orator.

However, this incident strengthened Corwin's conviction that the country did not want war. And when from his position of safety he saw policemen fighting their way into the crowd, dispersing it, and arresting some of the disturbers, he cynically remarked to a bystander that the incident proved that the workers of the world had no voice in the policies of their governments—liberty of speech was even denied them. And when, the next morning, Corwin heard that the offenders—the orator especially—had been accused of treason, he grinned sardoniously.

Suddenly, Corwin noted the preparations for the first Liberty Loan campaign. He heard rumors that the committee had examined into every man's resources, and that every citizen of Falltown was expected to buy bonds to the extent of his means. On the streets—in the shapes of placard and poster and handbill and sticker—appeared the slogan:

"Send Falltown over the top." Advertisements began to appear in the Observer—pointed paragraphs were there, appealing to the patriotism of Falltown's citizens. And on the morning when the loan campaign was launched, Corwin drove to his office in his closed car, dreading to be accosted by the workers that thronged the streets.

Corwin had got down early, and after he opened his desk he sat before it for a long time, thinking of the young man who had sneered at the speaker some nights before.

The young man's face had made a deep impression on him; he could see the fellow plainly—grinning his contempt of the orator and his friends. There had been no indecision in the young man's manner; he had exhibited a savage eagerness to punish the agitator who had tried to spread the doctrine of treason.

The young man was a force, a symbol of Americanism; he was exactly the type of man that had long been Corwin's ideal—a fighter taking no thought of consequences.

In a day before the poison of distrust had got into Corwin's veins he would have applauded the young man for what he had done; but now he saw in the fellow nothing but a superb animalism—a man with a magnificent body who blindly and unthinkingly fought, because, forsooth, a man in Washington had arbitrarily declared fighting to be necessary. "He's the sort of fellow that makes it possible for us to wage war," mused Corwin; "he's cannon-fodder—or willing to be. Capital knows that—and Capital will use him and his kind. No brain—just a fighting animal."

And yet, somehow, Corwin envied the young man, even while condemning him. His action in attacking the crowd of agitators made Corwin feel inferior; and even now, reviewing the incident, a pulse of something shameful and stealthy ran over him.

When Molly King came in she did not look at Corwin. She removed her hat, placed it in a locker, and went directly to her desk, where she sat, her hands folded in her lap, looking out of a window.

Corwin watched her covertly. Of late, Corwin had been aware of a deep interest in Molly. When she had first come to work for him he had regarded her with the impersonal interest of the employer. But of late he had discovered that he liked to have her near him; she made an alluring picture at her desk—her face in profile, the wavy mass of golden brown hair crowning her head and curving in hugging folds near the nape of her neck. And several times, watching her when she had not been aware of his gaze, he had drawn mental pictures of her in his house, gracing his table and his drawing-room.

For several days Corwin had noticed in Molly's manner signs of mental perturbation. She had been strangely silent, and several times Corwin had observed an expression of worry and haunting anxiety in her eyes.

He was thinking of her a few minutes later when he heard her chair creak as she left it and approached him, standing close, her face a little pale, a slight embarrassment in her manner.

"Mr. Corwin," she said; "I wonder if you could help me—I wonder if you will help me!"

Looking quickly at her, Corwin saw that her lips were quivering, and that there was a suspicious moisture in her eyes.

"Why, Molly?" He was out of his chair in an instant, astonished. A quick, sincere sympathy had gripped him. "Help you!" he said, earnestly; "that's the surest thing, you know!"

She laughed quaveringly; and he divined from the leaping relief in her eyes that she had doubted him.

"You thought I wouldn't—you were reluctant to speak to me about—about your trouble. Why, Molly?"

"Well, you see, I was rude to you the other day—when we talked about America going to war. And I was afraid I had no right to ask you. Perhaps I haven't, anyway. But Ben is in trouble, and I know of no one else who would—"

"Ben?" Corwin interrupted, with a keen glance at her.

"My brother." Her face grew very red, though her eyes were clear and slightly defiant as they met Corwin's.

"A few nights ago Ben got into a fight with some anti-war agitators. Ben is thoroughly American, and he couldn't stand hearing them say mean things about the country, and the President and the men who are running the war. So he knocked several of them down. And when a policeman tried to stop him he knocked the policeman down, too. And now they threaten to sentence him to jail for attacking an officer. And I've been wondering if you couldn't do something."

Corwin laughingly assured the girl that he would do "something." He went out of the office a few minutes later with Molly's thanks ringing in his ears, feeling unaccountably small and mean and insecure. For Molly's words about her brother being "thoroughly American" brought a vague disquiet into his heart. He, evidently, was not in that classification; for while Ben had been fighting the defamers of his country and his President, he had stood nearby, silently applauding the sentiments expressed by the agitators.

Was Ben, the magnificent fighting animal, a better American than he, who would have tried to bring reason to bear in the international quarrel—who advocated peace—a peace that would save millions of lives and billions of dollars? What was Americanism? Was it blind devotion? Or was it consideration of the good and safety of the country?

Corwin did not answer these questions—then. He went to the police station, interceded for Ben and obtained his release. But he found that he could not meet Ben's eyes when the latter thanked him; and when he returned to the office and told Molly that her brother was free—and she came over to him and took his hands and told him how thankful she was—he did not look at her—he sat silent in his chair, his face crimson, a queer sensation of guilt oppressing him.

CHAPTER IV

CORWIN, however, had the courage of his convictions. And before the Liberty Loan campaign was ended he had many occasions to put his courage to the test. For the campaign had not been fairly started when he received an official-looking letter from Dillon, the chairman of the committee, requesting him to subscribe ten thousand dollars. Falltown's quota, Dillon pointed out, was one million, and no doubt Corwin wanted to help the town go "over the top."

Corwin did not answer the letter; nor did he send in a subscription. He grinned sardoniously as he threw the letter into a waste basket, muttering as he did so: "If they want to carry on their fool war they'll do it without my help."

Aware that he had spoken loudly, he wheeled in his chair, to see Molly King watching him curiously.

Corwin flushed with embarrassment. Molly opened his mail, as usual, and so of course she knew what Dillon had written. Corwin saw her eyes quicken as she looked from him to the waste basket.

There seemed to be a bit of malice in Molly's eyes as her gaze traveled from the waste basket to Corwin, some speculation, and a glint of amazement.

But she smiled, oddly. Corwin would have felt more comfortable had she glared at him—for the smile was expressive of many things that disturbed him. He knew she had heard his vindictively muttered words, and that she wanted to say some very frank things. Of course it was only because she was an employee that she didn't.

What she did say seemed to have no bearing upon Corwin's action. Yet Corwin knew it was subtle reproof.

"Ben has joined the Army, Mr. Corwin," she said. "He was determined not to wait for the draft—he is so eager." And she folded her hands in her lap and looked steadily at Corwin.

Corwin's face went crimson. He turned his back to Molly and pretended to busy himself with his correspondence. Later, still uncomfortable, he got his hat and left the office. Looking back as he went out the door, he saw Molly grimly smiling over her work.

That was only one of the many incidents that tortured Corwin in the days that followed. Bond salesmen accosted him on the streets; they invaded his home; they found their way to his office. Boy Scouts trailed him here and there; friends inquired about the absence of the bond button that should have graced the lapel of his coat.

Patriotic advertisements glared at him from the pages of the Observer—seemingly to have been written directly at him. It was as though he were the only man in town who had not subscribed for the Loan, that the advertising writers knew it. There were truths in the advertisements, too—the writers seemed to have an uncanny understanding of the influences that kept him from subscribing. It was as though the writers were inside his brain, anticipating his thoughts, or transcribing them as they appeared.

And that his thoughts were visible things Corwin was becoming convinced. For he began to note that men looked at him curiously, inquiringly, their eyes seeming to say: "Did you buy a bond? No? Why?"

It seemed to Corwin that everybody he met knew he hadn't subscribed. And he began to glare defiantly at his friends, resenting their interest in him, the mute charge of disloyalty in their eyes.

Corwin began to evade crowds; whenever he saw people grouped together he slipped around the nearest corner. One day, about to enter the street door to go to his office, a smiling young woman shoved a pad of subscription blanks before his eyes.

"Buy a Bond, Mr. Corwin?" she asked.

He glared at her. "I have one," he lied.

"Where is your button?" There was frank incredulity in her eyes. The look angered Corwin. "This country would be better off if there were not so many people who feared with what does not concern them!" he declared.

"It should be the business of every person in this country to see that every person who can afford to buy bonds, gets them!" declared the girl, defiantly.

"I'll get them when and where I please!" he snapped, as he brushed past the girl and entered the building. "How you must love the Kaiser!" jeered the girl.

Corwin entered his office in a cold rage. He felt Molly King watching him covertly—at least it seemed to him that she did—but he did not look in her direction.

At noon he heard Molly rise from her chair. She got her hat and coat, stood before the glass in the alcove for an instant, and then moved toward him. He felt her presence at his side and looked up, to see her smiling at him. In one hand she held a pencil, and in the other a pad of Liberty Loan subscription blanks.

"Mr. Corwin," she said sweetly; "the Falltown office girls organized a Liberty Loan club last night. I have been selected as one of the saleswomen. There is going to be keen competition, and I want you to head my list."

Wrath was in the color that stole above Corwin's collar and suffused his face; a deeper wrath was to his heart. For an instant he meditated a sharp declination of the girl's invitation. Then, knowing he was fairly caught, he said, shortly:

"Put me down for a hundred."

"A hundred thousand?" queried Molly.

Corwin detected the humorous malice in the girl's voice; but he did not look at her, to see the knowing, tolerant smile on her face.

"One hundred dollars!" he snapped.

"Oh, Mr. Corwin—a hundred! Do make it more—won't you? You see, I haven't so many prospects in view."

"Where is your button?" and I shall have to ask each of them to subscribe rather heavily. I was counting on you for ten thousand, at least."

"Look here!" he said, facing her; "are you doing this for Dillon?"

"Dillon? Oh, no. I haven't seen Mr. Dillon. I am doing it for my country, Mr. Corwin—and yours. I am doing it for Ben—and for the other boys who will go to France presently, to fight for us and for World freedom. Why," she went on, a deep note in her voice; "I have subscribed for two hundred, myself. And I shall take more—just as fast as I can pay for them. I feel that I am not doing anything for my country in buying bonds. For it really isn't giving, you know—only lending. It really isn't even that; it is taking your money from one place and putting it into another place—just like transferring it from one hand to another. It seems to me that the boys who go overseas to fight—and perhaps to die—are the only ones who are really going to give the country anything. And even they are not giving more than they have received from the country. Oh, Mr. Corwin, isn't it great to be an American?"

"Well," said Corwin, "I take a thousand."

When he had signed his name on one of the blanks Molly bent over him and stuck a Liberty Loan button on the lapel of his coat.

Whether it was because Molly, in attaching the button, had been forced to come very close to him, or whether his surrender to her importunities had brought him a fleeting sensation of satisfaction, he did not know. But somehow, after Molly left, and he looked down at the button, he felt less guilty. But he knew he had not subscribed through patriotic motives, or because he had felt it was a duty he owed to his country; he had merely bought the bonds because Molly had seemed to insist—because there had seemed to be no way of denying her. His convictions were the same—they would not change.

Flowers Express Essential Feeling of Joyous Easter

"The altar is snowy with blooms, The font is a vase of perfume; On pillar and chancel are twining Fresh garlands of eloquent bloom!"

ALL the churches are decorated for the festival after Resurrection; and the lily, emblem of purity, sweetness, and grace combined, is the favorite flower for decoration.

Flowers voice the essential feeling of Easter. Each fragrant blossom is the fulfillment of a divine promise. For the perennial miracle of an awakened earth is in full harmony with the inspiring note of religion reiterating its faith in the promise of a new life.

Flowers, like music, speak the language of the heart. They are capable of conveying the most personal and individual ideals while yet appealing to a common universal vision and imagination.

This characteristic of flowers fits them especially both to express the private affections of the giver and enrich the symbolism of the altar. A basket or a cross of flowers can say all the heart wishes to any and say it without obscuring personal feeling.

In medieval times flowers spoke a definite language, the interpretation of which seems almost lost for a season. The palm, the chastest symbol of victory, was early taken as the symbol of martyrdom. It was outlined on the tombs of the early martyrs, and it was placed in the hands of those who suffered in the cause of truth, to express their final victory over the powers of sin and death.

Roses white and red voice innocence and love. The Madonna was the "Rose of Sharon." A wreath of roses is placed upon the brow of St. Cecilia. Roses and fruit are borne by St. Dorothy. A white anchor of camellias, with its top a cross, expresses faith and hope.

The lily has long been regarded as expressive of purity. In Bermuda, the home of our Easter lily, all the roads are full of people, white and black, carrying lilies to the churches at dawn on Easter day. With them the doorways, altars and pulpits are decorated, and the graves are completely covered. Each lily and each Easter flower thus bestowed is vocal, like one of those old litanies that have descended to us from time immemorial, full of wholesome piety and charity—common prayer to all devout souls. The flowers are of yet older birth than the ancient prayers—primeval litanies before ever music was.

Their eloquence is growing on us from year to year, as we bring roses, lilies and other Easter flowers to deck the altars of God, to hallow with their perfume and beauty the resting places of the departed and to dedicate our homes to Christ with our bright, sweet, sacred emblems.

"Christ is risen! with glad lips we utter, And far up the infinite height, At hallowed the psalm recited, And crown him with lilies of light!"

The Lilies' Message

O, lilies, snow white lilies, O, lilies, radiant, sweet, Ye are angels trooping earthward To kiss our Savior's feet.

One Famous Easter Egg.

The record in the size and cost of Easter eggs was broken by one given some time ago to a famous Parisian actress by one of her admirers. On Easter morning an immense van rolled into the courtyard of the house inhabited by the actress, and on the van rested a gigantic egg made of wood and decked with velvet. At the first moment the astonished lady did not know what to do with this amiable gift, but soon she noticed in the egg a door, and, upon opening it her eye fell upon a carriage with two fine horses and a coachman sitting motionless on the box.

FOREIGN-BORN WILL GO HOME

Expected Rush for Native Lands When Peace is Signed Presents Labor Problem.

Hammond, Ind.—The prospective departure of unnaturalized foreigners from the Calumet district as soon as peace is signed is to be dealt with by manufacturers, according to L. C. Bluseman, federal labor director, who has just completed a survey. He finds that 3,000 out of 6,000 questioned will return to their native lands. With the contemplated restriction of immigration manufacturers are faced with a new condition where industry depends on foreign labor. In four plants alone 9,405 men are of foreign birth and 6,177 unaturalized.

Will Be Safe Then.

Los Angeles, Cal.—"I'm all right when I'm sober," C. F. Scott told the court, admitting thefts. "Good, you can go to the penitentiary till the state's dry," said the judge.

Object to Narrow Skirts.

Lincoln, Neb.—Declaring the narrow skirts "a form of Prussianism to curb women in industry and affairs of the world," The Lincoln Women's club asked merchants to provide less extreme models.

Honor City's Soldiers.

Kansas City, Mo.—"Gold Glory" is to be unfurled here. Permanent memorial to Kansas City soldiers who died in service is planned by a flag with gold stars.

THE MUSK RAT.

The musk rat, as its name would indicate, is a species of rat. It is found nowhere but in America. Its body is shaped like that of the ordinary rat, but instead of the short, close hair of the land species, it is covered by a thick reddish-brown fur, and because it lives much in the water it has webbed toes. Although very awkward on land, it is lively and playful in water, and is a great swimmer and diver.

WELL-PRESERVED STAKES

Some of the piles in use in Amsterdam are three to four hundred years old. That part which is not in the ground in salt water is often bored by a pile worm near the surface, but is preserved by driving in nails with very large heads, so as to give the pile an iron coating. This coating is then transformed by the water into a layer of rust, which protects the wood from the pile worm. This process must be repeated every fifteen years.
